

When Using a Contractor

Wallbeds Company LLC

Please review this sheet with your contractor before hiring and before any work begins. Proper handling and installation protect your furniture, your home, and your safety. This checklist supplements the instructions supplied with your bed; it does not replace them.

- 1. Choose a qualified and insured installer. Ask about wall bed installation experience and check references. Verify any required contractor license and obtain proof of current general liability insurance and workers' compensation coverage where required. If this is the installer's first wall bed, have them review our instructions before accepting the job.
- 2. Agree on a fixed price in writing. Obtain a firm total installation price, not an hourly rate. Include the full scope of work, any wall preparation, and cleanup. Any additional work and its price must be approved by you in writing before it begins.
- 3. Inspect and document before assembly. As each piece is unpacked, the contractor must inspect it with you before assembly or installation. Photograph any dents, scratches, missing parts, or other concerns and report them to Wallbeds Company before proceeding. Do not conceal, touch up, or repair damage without approval. Damage discovered later must still be reported; its cause must not be assumed.
- 4. Confirm that the installation site is suitable. The contractor must verify the wall construction, sound attachment points, and required clearances. Before drilling or fastening, the contractor must locate and avoid hidden electrical wiring, plumbing, water pipes, and other utilities. If a safe fastening location cannot be established, stop until the issue is resolved.
- 5. Use the correct wall attachment. Standard installation must secure the bed to wood studs as specified in our instructions, never to drywall alone. Metal studs or masonry require a licensed contractor to assess the structure and establish a suitable attachment method consistent with our requirements. Contact Wallbeds Company before proceeding with a nonstandard installation.
- 6. Follow every installation step. The contractor must read the complete instructions for this model and follow them, including all warnings and required two-person steps. Provide enough qualified help and protect floors and furniture. Do not force parts, substitute hardware, drill new holes, or modify the bed without approval from Wallbeds Company. Stop and contact us if something does not fit or is unclear.
- 7. Install the safety cable and check the completed bed. The safety cable must be installed exactly as instructed; it does not replace the required wall attachment. Before use, the contractor must verify all attachments, hardware, and safety components, then demonstrate proper opening and closing with the intended mattress in place and explain safe operation to you.

Ask the contractor to include these requirements in your written installation agreement. Do not use the bed until installation and all safety checks are complete.
